

POSITION: Adjunct Instructor of Psychology

DEPARTMENT: Psychology

POSITION SUMMARY

The Department of Psychology is seeking applicants for an adjunct faculty position for the spring semester of 2023 (starting Jan 11, 2023) with a specialization in any area of psychology. Preference will be given to those with experience teaching in the undergraduate classroom and can teach introductory psychology, lifespan development, social psychology, or positive psychology. Review of applications will begin upon receipt of application materials and continue until the position is filled. We particularly invite candidates who will enhance the racial, ethnic, or cultural diversity of our campus.

North Greenville University is a teaching university of the South Carolina Baptist Convention and is a tobacco and alcohol-free campus. All NGU professors are expected to be orthodox Christians who have a strong personal faith, are role models in their piety and ethics, are regularly reflecting upon how their faith influences their discipline and are willing and able to mentor students in their own relationship with Jesus Christ. Faculty are expected to teach in accordance with, and not contrary to the university's "Statement on Human Flourishing."

RESPONSIBILITIES

- Teach an in-person course in general psychology or possibly social psychology, or lifespan development.
- Effectively utilize and monitor the learning management systems.
- Appropriately maintain student records, grades, and attendance to ensure accuracy and security.
- Meet all university deadlines for syllabi and grade submission.
- Actively pursue spiritual and professional growth

QUALIFICATIONS

- An earned doctorate in Psychology with teaching experience is preferred, however, a master's degree candidates will be considered.
- The ability to teach introductory survey courses in psychology is required. We also have a need for social psychology and positive psychology.
- Preference will be given to candidates who can show evidence of excellent teaching evaluations and a willingness to spend time advising and mentoring students.
- The ideal candidate will supply evidence of teaching skills with expertise in using technology in classroom instruction and best practices in teaching within their area.
- An ability to connect students with the practitioner community or their field of research or expertise.
- Able to mentor students in their own relationship with Jesus Christ.

PHYSICAL REQUIREMENTS

- Mobility: Able to move between buildings and attend classes, meetings, and functions across campus.
- Speaking: Frequently convey detailed or important instructions and ideas accurately, professionally, and with a contextually appropriate tone and volume.
- Cognitive/Emotional: Ability to critically think and express emotions and thoughts in an honest, collegial, constructive, and prudent manner

TRAVEL

All faculty are expected to be able to travel to campus for all class sessions and occasional departmental and faculty meetings.

WORKING RELATIONSHIPS AND SCHEDULE

This is a part-time, position in the Psychology Department. Psychology faculty report to the Psychology Department Chair, who reports to the Associate Dean of the School of Health Sciences, who reports to the Dean of the College of Humanities and Sciences.

As part of the application, candidates must submit a cover letter, CV, and transcripts, two professional references, and one reference from a leader in your church. Review of candidates will begin immediately and continue until positions are filled. If you have any questions about the position before applying, please contact Dr. Shannon Dobson, department chair, at Shannon.dobson@ngu.edu.

Please submit your resume in the North Greenville University application below.